Annual Report
2012-13

The Aspen Art Museum is a noncollecting institution presenting the newest, most important evolutions in international contemporary art. Our innovative and timely exhibitions, education and public programs, immersive activities, and community happenings actively engage audiences in thought-provoking experiences of art, culture, and society.

It is my pleasure to once again present the Aspen Art Museum's annual report. In addition to giving an overview of our combined institutional and AAM Foundation financial statements, this publication also allows us to share the museum's considerable accomplishments in 2012-13, and to illustrate our many expansive initiatives as we prepare for the transition to our brand new AAM facility in summer 2014.

To that end, we have continued to bolster the AAM's innovative and dynamic offerings of exciting exhibitions and artist projects, as well as growing access to the artists of our time through expanded public outreach efforts and educational programs. We have done this while also maintaining a diligent focus on our operations as a fully sustainable organization—one as responsibly managed as it is dynamically programmed.

As you will also note, the rapid progress made on the construction of the new AAM facility and the success of our Capital and Endowment Campaign continues unabated. The campaign's success is assured with the assistance and enthusiastic support of every AAM stakeholder—AAM leadership, donors, staff, museum members, and community partners alike.

Each of these endeavors is carried out with attentive and careful planning, and with the sole objectives of refining all our programmatic, strategic, and operating initiatives to serve larger and increasingly diverse year-round audiences more effectively than ever before, from Roaring Fork Valley residents and visitors to AAM enthusiasts from around the globe. It is this planning, along with our broad-based support, that allows us to continue to reach our institutional goals on schedule and within budget.

As always, our ability to succeed stems from our donors' continuing generosity of resources, time, and invaluable input. Their support enables us to provide each vital element in maintaining our institutional mission, and ultimately to move forward successfully in realizing what can only be described as our most important institutional moment since the founding of the Aspen Art Museum nearly thirty-five years ago.

I am thankful for the volunteer leadership and financial support of our Board of Trustees, the AAM National Council, members, corporate partners, and our many committed community partners. A special thanks too to those Board members who served during 2012-13 whose terms have run: Bruce Etkin, Carolyn Hamlet, and Debbie Lund; and a warm welcome to those who have joined as we look ahead to the upcoming year: Richard Goodman, Steve Hansen, and Amnon Rodan.

I also extend my thanks to the AAM staff and to all those who have continued to assist in the realization of our New AAM project. We remain on schedule with our construction, and we are excited beyond measure as we look forward to opening our doors to celebrate with you this coming August.

Our institution continues to thrive through our collective efforts. Please enjoy this look back at our accomplishments over the past year. I look ahead with great anticipation to sharing our promising and exciting future with you all.

Yours sincerely,

Heidi Zuckerman Jacobson
Nancy and Bob Magoon CEO and Director

Our most recently completed fiscal year was perhaps the most pivotal one in the history of the Aspen Art Museum. As construction of our new facility commenced in earnest, the Board's responsibility of fiscal oversight came more to the fore than ever.

The Board acknowledges the many individuals, foundations, and corporations that have contributed to the Capital and Endowment Campaign, which reached nearly $60 million in FY13. We also thank everyone for making timely pledge payments and, in many cases, accelerated payments. Our successful fundraising, in addition to the construction financing provided by ANB Bank, continues to provide us with all the necessary financing to deliver a completed building next summer.

It is worthy to note that the success of our campaign has left our annual AAM fundraising efforts undiminished. We thank you for continuing to fund your annual commitment to the AAM in addition to your Capital gift.

The Board of Trustees entered the new building project understanding the challenges it might present at times for the institution. Thanks to our stalwart donor base, we know the building will be ready on schedule. However, we also acknowledge that we must also reach our overall Campaign goal of $70 million to assure the long-term stability of the museum. In addition, we are aware of and fully anticipate significant increased operating expenses in the new building. These factors will require that we increase both our annual fundraising goals and our permanently restricted endowment funds.

Based on the generosity we have experienced in our endeavors thus far, we are confident we will reach our goals. In the meantime, the Board of Trustees remains diligent in continually monitoring construction and operational expenditures to ensure that every dollar is spent wisely, and that the museum is financially secure.

As a last, and unfortunately very sad, note, we want to acknowledge the recent unexpected passing of one of the truly great members of our AAM Board leadership, the visionary Chair of our AAM New Building Committee and, most importantly, our very dear friend—Frannie Dittmer. In every sense, Frannie's tremendous and generous spirit will remain both at the center of our community and as a cornerstone of the new AAM and its future vitality. She is remembered always and missed constantly. For all who knew her, and those who may not have been so fortunate but who will ever-benefit from the many things she brought to our institution, her presence will be felt in all that she was so vital in helping to create.

With thanks,

Continental Drift

October 19–November 25, 2012

Continental Drift featured seven Colorado-based artists exploring the idea of place. The artists featured were Christina Battle, Scott Johnson, Jeanne Liotta, Sarah McKenzie, Adam Milner, Yumi Janairo Roth, and Edie Winograde.

Ranging from specific studies of both historical sites and contemporary ruins to more abstract and conceptual examinations, their works demonstrated a collective preoccupation with place and setting that together formed a continuum that spanned the intimacy of the bedroom to the grandeur of the cosmos.

Continental Drift was organized by the Aspen Art Museum and Museum of Contemporary Art Denver and co-curated by former AAM Curator Jacob Proctor and MCA Denver Associate Curator Nora Burnett Abrams. Exhibition lectures at the AAM were presented as part of the Questrom Lecture Series and AAM educational outreach programming was made possible by the Questrom Education Fund.

Morgan Fisher: Conversations

December 14, 2012–
February 3, 2013

Morgan Fisher first achieved widespread recognition in the early 1970s for a body of experimental films that deconstruct the language of cinema both as physical material and as a set of production methods and technical procedures. Since the late 1990s, Fisher has focused his attention on the problems and possibilities of painting with an equally rigorous self-reflexivity. His paintings and also his installations investigate systems of perspective and color relations, and especially the relationships between paintings or groups of paintings and the architectural spaces they occupy. For his AAM exhibition—the first US museum exhibition devoted to his painting practice—Fisher conceived a new body of work employing modular structures based on an element of the architectural plans for the new Aspen Art Museum.

On January 22, Fisher introduced a special screening of his critically acclaimed films at Aspen’s Wheeler Opera House.

A Q&A and reception with the artist followed the evening’s program.

Morgan Fisher: Conversations was organized by the AAM and funded in part by the AAM National Council. General exhibition support was provided by The Andy Warhol Foundation for the Visual Arts. Exhibition lectures were presented as part of the Questrom Lecture Series and educational outreach programming was made possible by the Questrom Education Fund.

BLOCK, PILLAR, SLAB, BEAM

December 14, 2012–
January 20, 2013

With its title taken from a game devised by philosopher Ludwig Wittgenstein that uses the language of building to explore language itself, BLOCK, PILLAR, SLAB, BEAM brought together four emerging artists from Latin America. Jorge Méndez Blake, Alexandre da Cunha, Amalia Pica, and Gabriel Sierra playfully explore in their works the evocative potential of oft found physical and cultural materials that derive their basic meanings from their practical uses.

BLOCK, PILLAR, SLAB, BEAM was organized by the AAM and funded in part by the AAM National Council. Additional exhibition support was provided by The Bruce T. Halle Family Foundation for Latin American Art. General exhibition support was provided by The Andy Warhol Foundation for the Visual Arts. Exhibition lectures were presented as part of the Questrom Lecture Series and educational outreach programming was made possible by the Questrom Education Fund.

Monika Sosnowska

February 15–April 21, 2013

Monika Sosnowska's sculptural and architectural works take up specific forms and spaces that she manipulates into disorienting and often scarcely recognizable configurations. For her AAM exhibition, Sosnowska created three new large-scale sculptures based on a trio of familiar architectural forms—a window façade, a staircase, and an I-beam—altering and recontextualized them in ways that heightened the viewer's awareness of their initial structure and form, as well as their sculptural possibilities within the gallery space they occupied.

Monika Sosnowska was organized by the AAM and funded in part by the AAM National Council. General exhibition support was provided by The Andy Warhol Foundation for the Visual Arts. Exhibition lectures were presented as part of the Questrom Lecture Series and educational outreach programming was made possible by the Questrom Education Fund.

Kathrin Sonntag:
Green Doesn't Matter
When You're Blue

February 15–April 21, 2013

In Kathrin Sonntag's work, things are usually not how they first appear. Encompassing photography, digital projection, sculpture, and installation, Sonntag's AAM exhibition revealed an uncanny world of odd angles, unexpected likenesses, connections, and visual puns. Through the use of trompe-l'oeil photographic wallpaper and objects both sculptural and quotidian, Sonntag transposed the space of her studio into the gallery. As objects and images were doubled and reflected back through processes of mimicry and substitution, architectural and photographic spaces began to blend together, and visual rhymes and echoes created links between otherwise unrelated objects.

Kathrin Sonntag: Green Doesn't Matter When You're Blue was organized by the AAM and funded in part by the AAM National Council. General exhibition support was provided by The Andy Warhol Foundation for the Visual Arts. Exhibition lectures were presented as part of the Questrom Lecture Series and educational outreach programming was made possible by the Questrom Education Fund.

Rob Pruitt: An American Folk Artist

May 3–July 14, 2013

Since the early 1990s, Rob Pruitt's risk-taking investigations into American popular culture have taken many forms. From his glitter portraits of pandas to such events as his ongoing Flea Market and Annual Art Awards, Pruitt has employed a post-Pop sensibility to playfully satirize the art world and its ambivalent relationships to celebrity and popular culture. His exhibition at the AAM—Pruitt's first solo museum survey in America—charted a path through the artist's diverse oeuvre while staying true to the spirit of disruption that has long been central to his practice.

Rob Pruitt: An American Folk Artist was organized by the AAM and funded in part by the AAM National Council with additional support from Allison and Warren Kanders. General exhibition support was provided by The Andy Warhol Foundation for the Visual Arts. Exhibition lectures were presented as part of the Questrom Lecture Series and educational outreach programming was made possible by the Questrom Education Fund.

Thea Djordjadze

May 3–July 14, 2013

Originally trained as a painter, Thea Djordjadze creates sculptural installations that combine found and constructed elements in carefully choreographed settings. Employing materials ranging from the elegant to the everyday, Djordjadze's installations often suggest fragmentary arrangements of furniture and other functional objects, oscillating between abstraction and decoration, model and reality, process and product. Djordjadze's AAM exhibition was her first major solo presentation in North America, and consisted of a new, site-specific installation.

Thea Djordjadze was organized by the AAM and funded in part by the AAM National Council with additional support provided by Ali and Lew Sanders. General exhibition support was provided by The Andy Warhol Foundation for the Visual Arts. Exhibition lectures were presented as part of the Questrom Lecture Series and educational outreach programming was made possible by the Questrom Education Fund.

A Musical Tribute to the Maroon Bells

Old-Fashioned Fourth of July
Parade Project

July 4, 2013

The AAM's float for Aspen's 2013 Old-Fashioned Fourth of July Parade was designed by Los Angeles-based collective Machine Project, a loose confederacy of artists producing shows at locations ranging from museums to parking lots, and a nonprofit performance and installation space investigating art, technology, natural history, science, and even food, in an informal Echo Park storefront. Entitled Aspen Yodel Mountain: A Musical Tribute to the Maroon

Bells, the float featured animatronic skiers, live horn players, and a costumed Bernese Mountain Dog. After the parade, the community was invited to the museum for a free picnic and family art activity on the grounds.

Aspen Yodel Mountain: A Musical Tribute to the Maroon Bells was organized by the AAM with general exhibition support provided by The Andy Warhol Foundation for the Visual Arts.

Lorna Simpson: Works on Paper

2013 Jane and Marc
Nathanson Distinguished
Artist in Residence

July 26–September 22, 2013

As the first museum exhibition dedicated to Lorna Simpson's drawings and collages, Lorna Simpson: Works on Paper included a recent body of work created in Aspen, as well as an extensive survey of her works on paper. Most of these works take the African-American woman as a point of departure and examine the ways that gender and culture shape the experience of life in our contemporary multiracial society.

Lorna Simpson's Jane and Marc Nathanson Distinguished Artist in Residence residency and exhibition were organized by the Aspen Art Museum and funded by Jane and Marc Nathanson with additional support from Rona and Jeffrey Citrin. The publication was underwritten with major support from Toby Devan Lewis. General exhibition support was provided by The Andy Warhol Foundation for the Visual Arts. Exhibition lectures were presented as part of the Questrom Lecture Series and educational outreach programming was made possible by the Questrom Education Fund.

Hayley Tompkins

July 26–September 22, 2013

In her paintings, painted objects, and most recently found photographs, Hayley Tompkins emphasizes the energy found in small things and economical gestures. From sticks and scraps of wood to spoons and mobile phone casings, and images of early technology, rainbows, and fruit, her choice of support insistently draws attention to the boundary between art and reality. Organized in suggestive, informal arrangements, Tompkins's often minimal objects highlight the act of looking; they prompt us to slow down and attend to our surroundings in a concentrated way decidedly at odds with the pace of contemporary life. Her exhibition at the AAM was her first solo presentation in a North American institution.

Hayley Tompkins was organized by the AAM and funded in part by the AAM National Council with major underwriting support from Susan and Larry Marx. The publication was underwritten by Mary and Harold Zlot. General exhibition support was provided by The Andy Warhol Foundation for the Visual Arts. Exhibition lectures were presented as part of the Questrom Lecture Series and educational outreach programming was made possible by the Questrom Education Fund.

Dave Muller

A Few of My Favorite Things—
Aspen Three-Day Weekend

June 27, 2013–April 4, 2014

During the 2012-13 fiscal year, the AAM continued to present thought-provoking programming on the site of its future home at the corner of South Spring Street and East Hyman Avenue in Aspen's downtown core. Following on the success of Kay Rosen's Construction Zone (2012), which remained on view through spring 2013, Dave Muller created a new work for the exterior of the covered walkways on the site. The mural incorporated imagery from Muller's Three-Day Weekend event held in Aspen over the 2013 Presidents' Day weekend, which included an event in which visitors were invited to bring a favorite object to the museum for Muller to translate into a one-of-a-kind T-shirt. On the covered walkway, passersby encountered Aspen's favorite things, which ranged from hockey pucks to a local peak and a wallet.

AAM Future Home site exhibitions are funded in part by the AAM National Council and organized by the AAM with general exhibition support provided by The Andy Warhol Foundation for the Visual Arts. Works are created as part of the New Aspen Art Museum Site Commissions.

Questrom Lecture Series and Questrom Education Fund

During the 2012-13 fiscal year, the AAM bolstered opportunities made available through both the Questrom Lecture Series and Questrom Education Fund programming. In addition to the AAM's established I Don't Get It events, summer 2013 saw the AAM adding two new featured lecture series that allow the public to engage with contemporary artists and art historians and participate in thought-provoking discussions about art and culture. Like most QLS programs, these events are free and open to the public.

All programming presented as part of the Questrom Lecture Series. Educational outreach programming made possible by the Questrom Education Fund.

Artist Lecture Series

AAM's Artist Lecture Series brings distinguished artists to Aspen to discuss their creative practices. Participating artists in 2012-13 included Rachel Feinstein, Nate Lowman, and Gedi Sibony.

Art Has Always Been Contemporary

Art Has Always Been Contemporary is a new lecture series that invites eminent art historians to reframe the notion of contemporary art. The first lecture, "The Shock of the New!: 'Contemporary' Art in the European Middle Ages" featured Aden Kumler, Associate Professor of Art History, University of Chicago.

I Don't Get It

I Don't Get It looks at contemporary art in a fun, informal, and often humorous way, and encourages no-questions-barred conversations about current exhibitions with other community members and AAM curators.

Young Curators of the Roaring Fork

Plugged In

January 26–February 3, 2013

Since 2006, the AAM’s Young Curators of the Roaring Fork (YCRF) program has brought together high school students from throughout the Roaring Fork Valley who share an interest in contemporary art. The group works together to organize an exhibition of artwork by their peers, developing a deeper understanding of contemporary art and strengthening their visual literacy skills in the process.

The 2012–13 class of young curators chose Plugged In as the theme and title of their exhibition, asking artists in their schools to create works of art that shed light on the experience of being a “plugged-in” generation. The exhibition explored the many ways we navigate the complex network of information and technology that has defined the early years of the twenty-first century.

Support for the 2012–13 YCRF program and exhibition was provided by Mary and Patrick Scanlan.

Exhibition in a Box

The AAM's Exhibition in a Box program continues to be one of the museum's most relevant and successful community-based programs. In its seventh year, Exhibition in a Box once again offered third-grade students a curriculum-based classroom introduction to contemporary art led by AAM educators, followed by an all-expenses-paid visit to the museum to take a closer look at the art on view.

Exhibition in a Box for third graders reached one new school and re-engaged six schools that did not participate the previous year; the 2012-13 expansion of the program to middle schools also reached 469 students in six schools in Garfield and Pitkin Counties—a 200% increase from the prior fiscal year in both the number of students served and middle schools participating.

Support for Exhibition in a Box was provided by the Questrom Education Fund.

Winter Workshops

Under the guidance of professional artists and educators, children in the AAM's Winter Workshops develop artistic skills and expand their understanding of contemporary art through fun, hands-on projects, performances, group discussions, and off-site excursions.

AAM exhibition programming provides the source of inspiration for our annual Winter Workshops in December.

Summer Workshops

AAM Summer Workshops engage participants in art-based activities that span the fields of fashion, ceramics, street art, creative writing, photography, architecture, and more. Over the course of ten weeks during summer 2013, the AAM offered twenty-six week-long workshops for children ages 4-14 throughout the Roaring Fork Valley.

As in years past, the AAM collaborated with numerous local organizations to provide the most innovative and exciting variety of workshops possible.

Workshops in 2013 once again sold out in record time and, as always, AAM members were the first to know about course offerings, taking advantage of early registration opportunities and enjoying discounted course tuition.

Starting with this summer's workshops—and thanks to the generosity of Cari and Michael Sacks—the Aspen Art Museum offers need-based scholarships that fully cover workshop tuition for children of full-time residents of the Roaring Fork Valley.

AAM Art Educators in Training

Last summer, eight highly motivated students participated in the AAM's Art Educators in Training internship program, a career-building opportunity for teens interested in the arts and education. Interns gained hands-on experience and outstanding leadership skills by working for up to three weeks in unpaid positions as assistant instructors in the AAM's Summer Workshops.

The AAM's first parent/child summer workshop Together We Can, was a feature for kids under the age of four during 2013.

Family Workshops

Free Family Workshops at the AAM encourage children and adult teams to look, share, and create together. Families with children of all ages are welcome to drop in on select Sundays to explore the museum's current exhibitions and participate in hands-on art projects. Each month, families explore a different theme.

Open Studio

During summer 2012, the AAM launched its online Open Studio project, which offers a collection of classroom activities by noted international artists, accessible to educators and students around the world. Originally conceived by artist Mark Bradford for the J. Paul Getty Museum, this program has expanded to the AAM and the San Francisco Museum of Modern Art.

For the 2012–13 fiscal year, Open Studio expanded to include two new artists—Matthew Ritchie and Rivane Neuenschwander—who joined 2012 participating AAM artists Huma Bhabha, Andrea Bowers, and Kay Rosen.

Global Kid Connect

In spring 2013, the AAM partnered with Global Kid Connect (GKC), an organization that pairs students in the Roaring Fork Valley with students in Pakistan through a letter-writing and art-making exchange. Using contemporary art and artists as a guide, the AAM integrated art into both the existing GKC curriculum and that of participating K–8 classrooms by providing art lessons that address such universal themes as identity, diversity, leadership, and peace.

Arts Club

The museum expanded its Arts Club offering with the Aspen Youth Center to include two semesters, and launched its first-ever teen nights, including a slumber party held on Friday, July 5, during the Rob Pruitt: An American Folk Artist exhibition.

Girls Outdoor Art Expedition

This past summer, the AAM launched its Girls Outdoor Art Expedition, a traveling workshop for teens inspired by the life and work of Georgia O’Keeffe. Participants stayed at Ghost Ranch, New Mexico, and engaged in daily art-making activities and outdoor adventures. The itinerary also included a tour of O’Keeffe’s home and studio in Abiquiu, and a visit to the Georgia O’Keeffe Museum in Sante Fe.

Educator-in-Residence

Allison Agsten

This fiscal year, the museum once again invited an Educator-in-Residence to observe and evaluate AAM programs and meet with select staff. This past summer, the AAM welcomed Allison Agsten, Curator of Public Engagement and Director of Visitor Services for the Hammer Museum in Los Angeles, as its second Educator-in-Residence.

In her current role, Agsten collaborates with Hammer Artists-in-Residence and museum staff to develop a new paradigm for the museum experience. Formerly, Agsten was Director of Communications at the Los Angeles County Museum of Art. Prior to joining LACMA, Agsten was a producer in CNN's Los Angeles Bureau. She holds a Bachelor of Arts from UCLA.

Story Art

The AAM partners with the Pitkin County Library, the Basalt Regional Library, and the Gordon Cooper Library in Carbondale to offer Story Art, a free program that combines learning to read with art-making and activities that build visual literacy. Held once a month at each site, this program introduces children to the basic foundations of art through engaging storybooks, looking activities, and hands-on art projects.

Arts in the Schools

In collaboration with Aspen Elementary School, the AAM offers Arts in the Schools, a program of six in-school art classes for grades K-4, held after school hours. Activities include drawing, collage, creative writing, illustration, sculpture, and painting.

Session One: October 10–November 14, 2012

Session Two: January 9–February 13, 2013

Session Three: April 3–May 8

Homeschool Workshops

AAM Homeschool Workshops provide curriculum-linked studio projects for homeschool families in the Roaring Fork Valley. Each program provides an opportunity for parents and children to learn about contemporary art while creating a work of art together as a family, and each program is designed to teach parents techniques and skills for creating their own art experiences at home.

In 2012-13, the Aspen Art Press produced two new catalogues that coupled newly commissioned scholarship from world-class critics and curators with thoughtful design to capture the spirit of the AAM's innovative exhibitions.

Monika Sosnowska

The most comprehensive book on the artist in English to date, this publication offers a definitive, career-spanning exploration of the Polish sculptor, documenting a decade's worth of her objects, installations, and exhibitions, with new scholarship by Maria Gough, Adam Szymczyk, and Heidi Zuckerman Jacobson.

Lorna Simpson: Works on Paper

This beautifully illustrated catalogue features new scholarship by New Yorker staff writer Hilton Als, former MoMA Chief Curator of Drawings Connie Butler, LACMA Chief Curator of Contemporary Art Franklin Sirmans, actress/writer/professor Anna Deveare Smith, and Heidi Zuckerman Jacobson.

(The Hills Are Alive...)*, 2012
Elk Camp, Snowmass

Dave Muller is known for his wall drawings and large-scale works on paper that employ iconic structures such as the top-ten list to create diagrammatic but uniquely personal portraits based on the musical passions of their subjects. For the 2012-13 ski and summer recreation seasons, Muller installed a large, site-specific wall painting and three large works on paper at the newly constructed Elk Camp on Snowmass Mountain. Entitled Aspen Skiing Company Music Survey Results and Generated Topography (The Hills Are Alive...), Muller's wall painting was based on a survey distributed to Aspen Skiing Company employees asking for their ten favorite albums as well as their height.

A special Donor Circles artist reception honoring Dave Muller was held on Friday, December 21, 2012, hosted by the Aspen Art Museum and Aspen Skiing Company at the newly opened Elk Camp on Snowmass Mountain.

Organized by the AAM in collaboration with the Aspen Skiing Company. General exhibition support was provided by The Andy Warhol Foundation for the Visual Arts.

The Aspen Art Museum, The Westin Snowmass Resort, and Aspen's Baldwin Gallery were pleased to co-present the exhibition of two sculptures by internationally renowned contemporary visual artist Tom Sachs outside the main entrance of the Westin Snowmass Resort. Miffy Fountain and My Melody (both 2008) represent Sachs's take on iconic fictional cartoon characters—"Miffy," created by Dutch artist Dick Bruna, and "My Melody" by the Japanese company Sanrio. Both are painted cast bronzes, with Miffy Fountain functioning as an outdoor fountain.

Community Outreach

During fiscal year 2012-13, the AAM once again actively engaged with and expanded its educational offerings for existing and new audiences-efforts fully and sustainably supported by funding from the Questrom Education Fund and enhanced by collaborations with local partners.

The Shining Stars Foundation

During summer 2013, the AAM was invited to participate in the Shining Stars Foundation's annual Aspen Summer Adventure Program, a weeklong camp for children ages 8-12 facing cancer or other life-threatening diseases. The program is designed to foster new relationships among participants, while giving them challenging and unique experiences. The AAM collaborated with the Foundation to offer an art activity that encouraged creative and personal expression while offering a therapeutic outlet.

Buddy Program

During fall 2012, the Education Department collaborated with the Buddy Program to bring seven buddy pairs to the museum for an interactive group tour and art-making activity. This workshop provided buddy pairs a unique opportunity to connect and communicate through a direct experience with contemporary art.

English in Action

The AAM collaborates with English in Action, a local nonprofit that helps adult immigrants improve their English language and leadership skills, to offer a series of workshops that provide opportunities to hone vocabulary and practice public speaking skills through the process of looking at and talking about contemporary art.

Aspen Camp for the Deaf and Hard of Hearing

The AAM is proud to partner with the Aspen Camp for the Deaf and Hard of Hearing to provide interactive workshops on contemporary art for families participating in the organization's Family Connection Camps. Designed to improve communication among family members, these workshops use an art-centered dialogue to help break down language barriers while providing lasting memories.

Collaborations Partners Special Programming

Active Art

The AAM partners with the Pitkin County Senior Center and the Heritage Park Assisted Living Center in Carbondale to present Active Art, a monthly program that challenges seniors to actively engage with contemporary art through informal talks, lively discussion, and art-making activities. The program is free and offered off-site and at the AAM.

Pitkin County Jail

The Aspen Art Museum continues to partner with the Pitkin County Jail in an outreach program that affords interested guests a creative outlet via art-making and the opportunity to engage in a visual arts-centered dialogue. AAM educators present videos, printed exhibition materials, informal talks on contemporary artists, and art-making projects that relate to ongoing exhibitions. Art supplies and instruction are provided so participants may create their own work and develop their artistic styles and skills. This program is offered twice each month.

Youth Recovery Services, Valley View Hospital

Every six weeks, AAM educators visit the Youth Recovery Center (for ages 14-18) at the Valley View Hospital in Glenwood Springs to explore the transformative power of art. Through open discussion and an art-making activity, participants learn how art can serve as a powerful therapeutic process. This experience is paired with a visit to the museum to look at and reflect on original works of art.

Seniors at Carbondale's Heritage Park Assisted Living Center participate in art-making activities.

ART MATTERS!

Art Matters! episodes airing on GrassRoots TV12 in Aspen, and online at www.grassrootstv.org, include conversations with exhibiting artists, renowned curators and critics, and arts professionals from around the globe.

Art Matters! shows aired during the 2012-13 fiscal year included:

- Talking Art with Adam Milner and Yumi Janairo Roth (Continental Drift)
- Talking Art with Dave Muller
- Talking Art with Morgan Fisher

Slow Art Day 2013

April 2013

In April, the AAM joined cultural institutions in 190 cities worldwide in celebration of Slow Art Day, an international movement encouraging people to focus on art and the art of seeing. For this program, the AAM encouraged museum visitors to reconsider the 2008 exhibition Imaginary Thing, organized at the AAM by guest curator Peter Eeley, curator and associate director of exhibitions at MoMA PS1, and formerly of the Walker Art Center. Imaginary Thing resides underground as a memory, conceptual exhibition, permanent sculpture, and an inaccessible archive. Participants joined museum staff and local artists featured in the exhibition for an afternoon of observation, thought, and lively exploration.

2013 Marcia and Philip
Rothblum Foundation
Scholarship

In 2013, The Marcia and Philip Rothblum Foundation generously awarded Aspen High School senior Jessica Ruiz Zuniga a $5,000 scholarship toward continuing her college visual arts education. This award marks the foundation's third year of generous participation in the scholarship program.

Jessica is currently studying at Colorado State University in Fort Collins, with a focus on studio practice, and embracing the opportunity wholeheartedly. Of her studies thus far, she states: "This whole experience is everything I wanted."

AAM/Aspen High School College Scholarship awards are based on a student's stated intentions toward academic study in visual art and his or her demonstrated need for financial assistance. The scholarship also aims to reward candidates who are the first in their family to attend college. Candidates write brief essays of intent and submit records of their academic achievements, examples of their visual art, and recommendations from their high school instructors, guidance counselors, and other academic or civic leaders.

Campaign Update

The New Aspen Art Museum building project is 100% privately funded with a unanimously approved AAM Board of Trustees campaign goal of $70 million, including ample initial endowment funds.

During the 2012-13 fiscal year, strides forward to secure capital pledges were once again successful with a total of $59,521,265 reached by September 30, 2013.

Led by the Capital and Endowment Campaign Committee, and with the support of 100% of the Board of Trustees, AAM National Council, and museum staff, the AAM has made significant progress toward reaching its total campaign goal. We thank every member of the community who has made an investment in the success of our project and contributed to the rich cultural history—and future—of Aspen, as we look ahead to the facility’s grand opening in August 2014.

Donors to the Capital and Endowment Campaign at the Founders level ($250,000 and above) will be recognized in perpetuity on a wall located at the main entrance of the new AAM. This list will be finalized prior to the grand opening of the building, and no additions will be able to be made following that date.

For more information, or to make a gift to the AAM Capital and Endowment Campaign, contact Campaign Manager Grace Nims at 970.925.8050 ext. 28 or at gnims@aspenartmuseum.org. She is happy to assist in making a personal appointment to discuss your gift to the campaign with a member of the Campaign Committee or with the Director. Every gift to the campaign is a reflection of philanthropy that is a good fit for both the donor and the institution.

The New Aspen Art Museum:
Building Progress

Construction of the new AAM facility at 637 East Hyman Avenue in Aspen commenced on October 16, 2012, with an anticipated eighteen-month project timeline and a grand opening date set for August 2014. The past fiscal year saw construction progress on the Shigeru Ban-designed facility that took it from excavation through the initial installation process of the building's signature rooftop wood truss. Some highlights of the past year are as follows:

Digging the new AAM's foundation took approximately twelve weeks and saw about 180,000 cubic feet of material removed from the site. Final excavation depths reached 24 feet along the alley and 18 feet elsewhere.

By nine weeks into construction, the installation of soldier beams and wood lagging were in process and the hole was being drilled for Shigeru Ban's "moving room" glass gallery elevator on the northeast corner of the new facility.

Crews began forming the foundation walls in late February 2013.

By mid-May, the pouring of both the foundation and the lower level slab had been completed. Forming of the street level slab was ongoing and installation of post-tension cables had begun within the second level gallery floors. At this point, construction had comprised 164 days of work and averaged thirty-seven workers on-site per day—70% of whom were local.

During July 2013, the third level's post-tension deck was poured, and the topping out of the facility's concrete structure was completed (July 23). The roof truss, a significant architectural feature of Shigeru Ban's design, was underway at Spearhead Timberworks in Nelson, British Columbia, Canada.

During August, interior and exterior wall framing was underway throughout the facility, and by mid-September, work had commenced on the precast grand stair. This unique design feature allows for the natural blending of outdoor and indoor spaces, and will feature mobile pedestals where art will be exhibited.

By the beginning of October, exterior wall framing was underway, and preparations were being made for installation of windows on the south side. Utility installation was ongoing and construction of the roof truss scaffolding system had begun.

The covered pedestrian walkways on South Spring Street and East Hyman Avenue featured the artwork of Dave Muller (see p. 14).

The AAM and its New Building Committee would like to thank Turner Construction and all our AAM project team members—for keeping us on time, on budget, and on track over this past year!

AAM construction updates can be obtained in the weekly New AAM Now e-mail newsletter. If you would like to follow our progress, contact AAM Community Liaison Nicole Kinsler at 970.925.8050 or nkinsler@aspenartmuseum.org, and she will add you to the subscriber list.

The Nancy and Bob Magoon
CEO and Directorship

In December 2012, the Aspen Art Museum (AAM) announced a $2.5 million single-donor gift made by longtime AAM supporters Nancy and Bob Magoon to endow, in perpetuity, the “Nancy and Bob Magoon CEO and Director.” This landmark endowment established the first endowed position in the institution’s thirty-three-year history and is in addition to the couple’s generous $500,000 gift made toward the capital campaign to construct the New Aspen Art Museum facility. Nancy Magoon served as AAM Board President from 2006 to 2009, and it was under her leadership that the AAM embarked on its current $70 million Capital and Endowment Campaign.

Heidi Zuckerman Jacobson immediately began using her new title as the Nancy and Bob Magoon CEO and Director. She first assumed the role as the Aspen Art Museum’s Director and Chief Curator in July 2005, serving in that leadership position until 2011, when she received the additional title Chief Executive Officer.

Of the gift to establish the Nancy and Bob Magoon directorship, Nancy Magoon commented: “As supporters of the Aspen Art Museum’s crucial role as a signature institution for the cultural well-being of the Aspen community, Bob and I are absolutely thrilled to make this gift. At a moment when the AAM is growing, not only literally, but also continuing to do so in its influence and stature within the international contemporary art community, we are also heartened to know that the directorship role will be occupied by Heidi Zuckerman Jacobson.”

AAM Art Trip: South America

April 14-23, 2013

Part of the fun of being a Donor Circles member is the opportunity to travel to different parts of the world and experience contemporary art with fellow patrons and AAM leadership. The AAM's travel program offers members unique opportunities to join specially planned trips that include behind-the-scenes tours of contemporary art galleries, artists' studios, museums, and private collections, all while enjoying the finest accommodations and dining.

In spring 2013, the AAM's Heidi Zuckerman Jacobson led members on a journey through Argentina and Brazil, offering an intimate look at extraordinary artistic and architectural points of interest in Buenos Aires, São Paulo, Inhotim, and Rio de Janeiro. Highlights included visits to the studios of Guillermo Kuitca, Ernesto Neto, and Vik Muniz; gallery and museum tours; and a look at the private collections of José Olympio and Andrea Pereira, Luisa Strina, and Patricia and Juan Vergez. The group also paid an unforgettable two-day visit to Inhotim Institute of Contemporary Art, a five-thousand-acre botanical sanctuary that features twenty galleries and twenty-three outdoor works of art by such important contemporary artists as Doug Aitken, Matthew Barney, Olafur Eliasson, Hélio Oiticica, and Lygia Pape.

The AAM Art Travel program is a benefit of membership in the AAM's Donor Circles. Domestic trips are open to Patrons Circle level and above, and international travel is a benefit of the Director's Circle level and above. For information on the next AAM Art Trip, please contact Amelia Russo at 970.925.8050.

Fiscal Year 2012-13 AAM Contemporaries events included:

October 2012

AAM Contemporaries joined Continental Drift exhibition artists at Aspen's La Creperie du Village to chat over a creative three-course dinner.

December 2012

AAM Contemporaries were invited to Baldwin Gallery owner Richard Edwards's home to explore his personal contemporary art collection.

January 2013

This year's annual AAM Contemporaries meeting took place at the residence of Heidi Zuckerman Jacobson and Christopher Jacobson. Members had the opportunity to mingle and view contemporary art and learn more about the new building project from New Building Committee member Larry Marx.

February 2013

AAM Contemporaries collaborated with Jazz Aspen's The Band membership group for an I Don't Get It program. Heidi Zuckerman Jacobson led the two groups in an informal and open dialogue about artist Monika Sosnowska's AAM exhibition. The evening concluded with a jazz performance by Monty Alexander in the intimate JAS Café Downstairs at the Nell.

July 2013

AAM Contemporaries attended a private collection tour at the home of Nancy and Bob Magoon.

September 2013

AAM Contemporaries enjoyed a studio visit with Aspen-based artist Tania Dibbs.

AAM Community
Advisory Committee

Beginning in November 2009, the Aspen Art Museum invited a group of individuals from throughout the Roaring Fork Valley to add their voices to an open and ongoing dialogue about museum programming and practices and the role of the museum within the community.

Chaired during fiscal year 2012-13 by AAM Board of Trustees member Marc Friedberg, the CAC meets every other month to review AAM goals and weigh in on strategies for achieving mission-based objectives.

As a group, the CAC provides us with valuable collective insight and an overview of how the community engages with the museum and our programming.

Financial News

It is with great pleasure that I share with you on the following pages the 2012-13 Consolidated Financial Statements for the Aspen Art Museum and the Aspen Art Museum Foundation.

While recognizing that these entities remain distinct organizations with their own aligned missions and separate governing boards, as in years past we have combined the presentation of their financials and prepared them to fully represent the financial position of the institution in accordance with Generally Accepted Accounting Principles regarding related parties.

In brief, once again we have demonstrated a stable operation with significant growth. Our overall assets increased by 55%—resulting in a combined statement of financial position that reflects a $59 million institution. This means a 269% growth over the last five years, and represents, yet again, another outstanding achievement for our institution in that time period.

During the 2012-13 fiscal year, we recognized $10,795,380 of pledges and donations toward the ongoing Capital and Endowment Campaign. Use of the capital campaign funds in combination with $9.3 million in construction loan draws have allowed us to invest $26.6 million to date in the property and toward construction of the new facility.

In addition, our annual fundraising efforts were hugely successful, particularly with regard to our benefits, which netted over $2.8 million; a 2.2% increase from our previous fiscal year. These revenues, in combination with the continued prudent oversight of the operating budget, generated a significant surplus in operations. The Board of Trustees approved using the approximately $464,000 surplus toward an operating reserve for opening and then operating in the new museum over the next five fiscal years.

Under the oversight of the Investment Committee of the Aspen Art Museum Foundation, we experienced an investment return on our endowment funds of approximately 8%, inclusive of fees, over the course of the fiscal year.

The Foundation supported the museum's operations with an endowment draw of 3.5% or $161,246.

We ended 2012-13 with Cash & Cash Equivalents of over $6.0 million and endowment investments of $7.3 million. With our investment in property and capital campaign-related pledges, combined financials reflect total assets of $59,059,505.

These significant financial achievements are made possible only by the numerous contributions that continue to make the Aspen Art Museum and Foundation successful and financially sound. As our new facility takes rapid shape, we look forward with great excitement to our continuing growth as an institution, in step with our ongoing commitment to its fiscally conservative management.

Yours sincerely,

Jon Lee

2012-13 CONTRIBUTORS

The Aspen Art Museum relies upon the generosity of our members and donors each year to provide quality visual arts programming to the Aspen community and Roaring Fork Valley. We would like to recognize the following individuals, families, businesses, and organizations for their extraordinary support for the museum between October 1, 2012 and September 30, 2013. Please note that giving totals reflect annual contributions excluding gifts to our ongoing Capital and Endowment Campaign as well as benefit auction purchases.
